EMPLOYMENT

End Violence Against Women International (EVAWI)

Director of Research

December 2004 to present

EVAWI is a non-profit organization dedicated to a vision where gender-based violence is unacceptable; where perpetrators are held accountable, and victims receive the compassion, support, and justice they deserve. Our mission is to inspire and educate those who respond to gender-based violence, equipping them with the knowledge and tools they need to support victims and hold perpetrators accountable. We promote victim-centered, multi-disciplinary collaboration, which strengthens the response of the criminal justice system, other professionals, allies, and the general public – making communities safer.

As the Director of Research, my duties include developing grant proposals and preparing grant reports. During my tenure, EVAWI has received more than $7.5 million dollars in public and private funding. I also develop training materials for live presentations and written resources, and I provide training and technical assistance for professionals in a range of diverse fields. This includes law enforcement, victim advocacy, health care, and prosecution, in communities, on campuses, and in the U.S. military.

Chief Penny Harrington & Associates, L.L.C.

Director of Research and Training

December 2001 to August 2005

Chief Penny Harrington & Associates is a private consulting firm specializing in employment discrimination and sexual harassment, with particular emphasis on law enforcement organizations. As Director of Research and Training, I reviewed policies, procedures, and other materials relevant to legal cases and contributed to the development of expert reports for submission to the court.

National Center for Women & Policing

Director of Research

April 1999 to May 2003

As Director of Research for the National Center for Women & Policing (a division of the Feminist Majority Foundation), my responsibilities included: reviewing literature on law enforcement and criminal justice policy; developing grant proposals and preparing grant reports; conducting original research; and providing training and technical assistance to researchers, practitioners, and policymakers. I also served as Project Director on a grant awarded by the Violence Against Women Office (a division of the U.S. Department of Justice, now known as the Office on Violence Against Women), with the purpose of developing a training curriculum for law enforcement in sexual assault investigation, with particular emphasis on cases involving known offenders (i.e., non-strangers). After completing the development of the curriculum, I hosted two national "train-the-trainer" workshops to certify individuals from around the country who could implement the program in their state or region. As Project Director, I was responsible for administering a budget of over $280,000 and completing all federal reporting requirements.

California Polytechnic State University
Lecturer, Psychology and Child Development

September 1998 to December 2007

Over a period of nine years, I taught several courses: Introductory Psychology (202), Applied Social Psychology (360), Personality Psychology (350), and Quantitative Research Methods (333). I also provided supervision for undergraduate research interns and senior project students on a regular basis.

American Bar Foundation
Post-Doctoral Research Fellow

August 1996 to July 1998

Upon completion of my doctoral degree, I served in a two-year post-doctoral fellowship with the American Bar Foundation, a non-profit research foundation dedicated to the interdisciplinary study of law and society. My primary duty was simply to continue the research program I began in graduate school. However, additional expectations included attendance at research seminars and conferences, reviewing papers and research proposals, and generally interacting with colleagues in a wide variety of disciplines, including sociology, political science, history, economics, anthropology, geography, and law.

CONSULTING SERVICES

Expert Witness, Research Consultant

May 2003 to present

I provide consulting services for attorneys, non-profit organizations, and other clients. This primarily includes service as an expert witness in the area of sexual assault, sexual harassment, and law enforcement. In addition, I provide assistance and consulting to clients conducting research projects.
